5. Chair's Annual Report: The Chair tabled his Annual Report for 2025. David acknowledged his short tenure of four months and shared his motivation for stepping into the role. As a long-time resident with extensive experience in management, consulting, and governance, he took on the position to provide leadership and address key community concerns.

A major issue highlighted was the Wellington City Council's (WCC) failure to provide essential services and engage meaningfully with residents. Despite employing over 60 communications staff, public consultation remains poor, with key decisions made without sufficient community input. Rising costs and governance shortcomings continue to burden residents, yet few are actively involved in seeking solutions.

Over the past year, ORCA has organised several events, including sessions on animal control, road safety, and emergency planning. David also criticised WCC's Long-Term Plan review process, which lacked genuine resident engagement and wasted ratepayer funds. Additionally, he noted the presence of over 40 volunteer-run organisations in the area but highlighted the need for better coordination and awareness of these groups.

Looking ahead, ORCA aims to improve communication between local organisations, develop a centralised resource listing community services, and advocate for regular ward councillor workshops to enhance public engagement. David also emphasised the need for younger residents to step forward and take an active role in ORCA to ensure strong community representation in the future.

Report accepted: Martin Jenkins, Peggy Klimenko, Carried.
